Actualité juridique / Legal news

The administrative court in Stuttgart decided that the selective implementation of the school law of Baden-Württemberg violates the constitutional principle of equality as enshrined in the Article 3 Basic Law and Article 14 European Convention on Human Rights. The court found that administrative practice to prohibit teachers to wear the Islamic headscarf while permitting the habit of nuns and the Jewish kippa was discriminatory and thus unlawful. Sondage / Survey

On the 12th of March the results from a survey on Danes and immigrants in Denmark were made available to the public. The survey centered on values including religious ones. The original scientific report is freely available (but unfortunately only in Danish at the moment). The survey was conducted on representative samples of ethnic Danes, and 1st and 2nd generation immigrants from Turkey, Pakistan, the west Balkans, Iran, Iraq, and Vietnam.

Actualité juridique / Legal news

Danish politicians from the current government (the Liberal party and the Conservative party) and its parliamentary support (the Danish People's party) formulated a law proposal that would make it mandatory for foreign religious preachers to pass a Danish language test before entering Denmark to work as religious preachers (priests, imams etc.). If the test was not passed the preacher in question would not be allowed entry to Denmark.

After much criticism from religious groups (including several Christian minorities) the relevant politicians have promised to change the law proposal to make it less strict. Now the proposal states that foreign preachers must pass the test while residing in Denmark on a special 6 month visa.

The two major ongoing debates now in Italy regard, on one hand the well known DICO (PACS), and the possibility to have a biological testament, so to avoid unnecessary treatments.

-The PACS debate: (for further information: FUCILLO, Antonio (dir.), Unioni di fatto, convivenze e fattore religioso. G. Giappichelli : Torino, 2007). The civil pacts should give equal rights to non-married couples, and so even to homosexual couples. The CEI (the Episcopal Conference of Italy) is currently preparing a new document regarding the subject that should help the catholic MP's to vote. Experts are currently debating on the legitimacy of this document, since it is viewed or as a interference of the Church in the State independence, or as a legitimate opinion of the church. The new document was disclosed the 27th of March 2007, and advises the catholic MP's to not vote the new law on the family.

- The Biological Testament: Recently the last bishop of Milan, Cardinal Maria Martini, wrote an open letter to the newspapers regarding the possibility of legitimating a biological testament in Italy.
