- The Ministry of Education and Science proposed the students in some fields of studies not to pay university taxes. These fields are Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Educational Studies, and Theology. If the choice of the first four is determined by the shortage of professionals in these spheres, the motives for the last one are not clearly stated. In addition, the universities in Bulgaria offer only programs in Orthodox Theology. The other religions in Bulgaria have no university level theological training recognized by the state authorities.

Actualités juridiques / Legal news

- Corte Costituzionale, Sentenza 12 ottobre 2018, n. 186/2018. (Detenuti in regime di 41-bis e divieto di cuocere cibi in carcere. Dichiarazione di illegittimità costituzionale). La Corte Costituzionale ha dichiarato incostituzionale l'art. 41-bis dell'ordinamento penitenziario nella parte in cui non consente ai detenuti assegnati a quel regime di cuocere cibi in cella. La disposizione censurata, infatti, viola sia gli artt. 3 che 27 della Costituzione. Alla luce degli obiettivi cui tendono le misure restrittive autorizzate dalla disposizione in questione, le limitazioni in materia di cottura dei cibi, secondo la Consulta, appaiono incongrue e inutili, configurandosi come un'ingiustificata deroga all'ordinario regime carcerario, dotato di valenza meramente e ulteriormente afflittiva. Potersi esercitare nella cottura dei cibi, al contrario, costituirebbe una modalità, "umile e dignitosa", per tenersi in contatto con le usanze del mondo esterno e la negazione dell'accesso a questa abitudine si configura come una lesione all'art. 27, terzo comma, Cost., presentandosi come un'inutile e ulteriore limitazione, contraria al senso di umanità.)
- Tribunale Amministrativo regionale Lombardia, Sentenza 08 ottobre 2018, n. 2227/2018. Questione di legittimità costituzionale e legge regionale sull'edilizia di culto. (Il TAR Lombardia ha rimesso alla Corte costituzionale, per contrasto con gli artt. 2, 3, 5, 19, 114, 117, commi 2, lett. m), e 6, terzo periodo, e 118 Cost., la questione di legittimità costituzionale relativa all'art. 72, comma 5, l. reg. Lombardia 11 marzo 2005, n. 12, nel testo risultante dalle modifiche apportate dall'art. 1, comma 1, lett. c), l. reg. Lombardia 3 febbraio 2015, n. 2, nella parte in cui, avuto riguardo alla tutela costituzionale riservata alla libertà religiosa, non detta alcun limite alla discrezionalità del Comune nel decidere quando e in che senso determinarsi a fronte della richiesta di individuazione di edifici o aree da destinare al culto. Ritiene infatti il Tar che la domanda di spazi da dedicare all'esercizio di tale libertà debba trovare una risposta - in un senso positivo o in senso negativo - in tempi certi, ed entro un termine ragionevole, avuto riguardo sia ai tempi connessi alla valutazione di impatto sul tessuto urbanistico, a volte indiscutibilmente complessa, sia avuto riguardo alla particolare importanza del bene della vita al quale aspirano i fedeli interessati. La richiamata condizione di attesa a tempo indeterminato e di incertezza rileva quale ostacolo all'esplicazione del diritto di libertà religiosa.)

- The Supreme Court on 7th November, 2018 dismissed the cassation appeal of the prosecutor against the teacher who had removed the cross from the wall in the teacher's room. The case was not the question of the admissibility of hanging a cross in a teacher's room in a public school, nor the question of the right of believers to manifest their religion, but the behavior of the school director, as the employer of the plaintiff, and her co-workers, in the light of the provisions on discrimination in employment.

- The four projects of law on euthanasia – medical assistance in dying, presented on the Portuguese parliament in May 2018, have not been approved. One of them, Project of Law 832/XIII/3.^a, from the Portuguese Socialist Party, was not approved by five votes (for: 110; against: 115; abstain: 4). In particular, this project of law intends to “Proceed to the 47th amendment to the Penal Code regulating the special circumstances for the practice of non-criminal euthanasia”. The religious communities legally recognized in Portugal have fought these proposals very actively. In addition to many public discussions and protests, they presented for the first time a joint document against medical assistance in dying - Declaration of the Interreligious Religions-Health Working Group. However, despite the defeat, left-wing parties (and in particular them, the ones who have come forward with bills on euthanasia) want to re-discuss and possibly vote on this issue in the next legislature (2019-2023).

Colloques à venir / Forthcoming conferences

- Debt in the UK: Faith-Based and Secular Responses, 10 December 2018: 18.30-20.00
Wolfson Theatre, New Academic Building, London School of Economics. 54 Lincoln's Inn Fields, London, WC2A 3LJ
Since the financial crisis, the roles of the state and religious organisations in British public life are changing. Faith-based organisations are key providers of relief to those in debt, often while criticising the debt economy as an underlying cause of poverty and inequality. What common ground do religious and secular civil society organisations have in identifying the challenges of debt and providing solutions? How far do faith-based and secular analyses of personal debt in the UK today converge and intersect? What are their differences? A series of talks will explore the moral implications of debt as a social issue.

- Sociology of religion study group - annual conference 2019
Communicating Religion, 9-11 July 2019, Cardiff University.
As scholars of religion, we are all tasked with communicating religion in one way or another – to students, to the public, and to our research community. Moreover, what we study is itself a message: participants in our studies and creators of the documents we analyse are communicating religion, and what we receive as data is what Giddens referred to as the 'double hermeneutic,' or ideas and experiences that have already been mediated. What is the religion communicated to us? How do we communicate religion, and what is it that we communicate when we're doing it?

- Dans l'arrêt du 13 mars 2018, la Cour constitutionnelle de Russie a précisé les differentia specifica des activités missionnaires. A la suite de la promulgation en 2016 d'une série de dispositions législatives concernant la réglementation des activités missionnaires, les juges russes ont prononcé une sanction contre plusieurs personnes et associations religieuses (en majorité des protestants) pour violation de cette réglementation. La Cour constitutionnelle a affirmé que seules les activités de diffusion de l'information sur une association religieuse ayant pour but d'amener une personne n'appartenant pas au groupe à y adhérer doivent être reconnues comme activités missionnaires et soumises à la réglementation prévue par la loi.
